Festivities in the South at Halloween as Witnessed by a Maine Lady—Other Notes of Interest

Dear Friends: Since my letters have been late for the paper, skipping one week, I have waited this time to tell you of our Halloween celebrations. They make a regular party of the night of October 31st, as 4th of July brings in the North. There were parties the whole week. The first one Eva attended was at the home of Miss Bright, who is in the Civic Club. Then there was one at the Y. W. C. A., given by the Girl Reserves, of course she wanted a new costume for this occasion. I made her one of white cheesecloth fringed and ruffled and fixed to represent "A Maine Snow Ball." I asked both girls for lists of costumes. They produced their's unique, as representing her home state. Then there was a "Halloween Festival" given by the Domestic Science Girls at the school. It was highly organized the different booths and were wound up in confetti streamers by the jolly pumpkins and spoons who had charge. The children might say they did not quite come up to the Maine brand but we have been used to in early fall but we drained it, however. The Danish sandwiches were very attractive, too.

The grand celebration came Saturday night. At dusk it began with bands of cornets, ringing of bells and beating of whistles and it continued until midnight. Of course we went over to the Avenue to take in the parade. Not some of our friends and family went and strolled back and forth with the merry throngs. Old and young were in costumes. There were Dutchmen and Pilgrims, it is hard to remember. There was Bone's crew, Spanish S-martias and the attendants, Jolly Englishmen with Ladies, fair Dudes and Ruffes, fat backed comical people flitting about in the shape of faeries, sprites, and elves, hobgoblins, wild looking black cats clovis, flowers of all kinds and hundreds of Halloween girls were here and the crowd was so large it happened to occupy the half of the sidewalk. I went from Second St. to Sixth and back, then found a seat on one of the green benches and watched the parade. In the street were auto parties in costume and black cats riding on horse horses striped to look like zebras. Some autos had old wash bottles dragging along underneath to make the din more emphatic. Traffic was slow that night! We came home at 11:20 p. m. and we looked as if we had been in a real Maine carnival, for we were all dirty and covered toilet powder from lead to foot and wound in colored streamers, for no one escapes the merry-makers. The police, however, were obliged to interfere and put a ban on the powdering of the crowd for they became too careless and let you have it in the eyes or anywhere. The papers next morning said that over 2,000 powder cans were confiscated,—some dealers took in a till of change from the confetti and powder, surely! The sidewalks were carpeted with confetti and what getting it off the rugs next morning, it looked like there had been a wedding here!

Last week we went to Madelon Beach, once again Pasadena, the Jungle Country Club, and the Gang-Planck. This latter is a dance hall and dining room built to represent a ship. The decorations are sea-like and the attendants dress like pirates. Here gay parties are held in the height of the afternoon. Last night we went to Madelon Beach, over the town concrete "Seminole Causeway," and the beach itself is one of the finest bathing beaches here. There is a lot of Mexican yucca, and the sand is soft and fine. We saw two very beautiful seals swimming in the water. One of them swam up on all fours and sank down again until he could get his head above water. He was more than a mile away from shore and there for a long time before he got back to the water and swam off. Several other seals were seen resting on the beach. They were rescued.

"Fair Play" at Madelon Beach one day, with the Parry wheel and other deductions) to take the dinner and supper with them. They stayed at the picnic. The sunset was glorious and we watched the skyline for a long time. Across from the beach we could see the Hotel at Pasadena. The view from the beach could see Clearwater Creek. As we came across the causeway, we saw a big old tractor that had evidently run too far and had broken down. It was stuck in the mud, also two wrecks from the recent storm in September.

Last night there were about five hundred Ku Klux Klans in parade up Center Street. All their costumes including the masks. This was the opening of their carnival or circus that they are holding all this week to raise money and stand against the Klan. Some were mounted on motorcycles and some on horsedraft and some in cars. Two of the big Funeral Directors' Companies here were in the parade. There is talk of another parade. Last year they had the State Ku Klux Klan here and there were about 5,000 in the parade. It was weird enough watching to come in greater numbers now and the courts for the games at Mirror Lake look as if the season were beginning!

The register at the hotel says that this month there is to be the big meeting of the $1,000,000.00 Municipal Pier. The old pier has been removed and the new one is a large one and will be wonderful if the pelicans will feel at home on its new one, as they did on the old. The pelican is the Florida bird, you know, and particularly so in the case of the fisherman. There are so many of them, or were, on the pier waiting to be treated by the fishermen who fish off the pier. They are a grotesque and ugly-looking bird, and size and length a long bill. Under this bill is their esophagus. It is six inches deep and about a foot and a half long, and they use it as a sort of a fish trap. They are so greedy and so stupid that to see them feeding their young, or rather to see the young help themselves, for the mother bird, or father one, dip into the hole and let the little ones pick out such-and-such esophagus under their bill and "go to it." They get to reaching in so fast that sometimes they swallow the bait and do not fall in the first. There are twenty species of the bird and some of them grow to be fifteen feet long, with a wing spread of ten feet. They are very noisy birds and during nesting time the males have a big lump on top of their head, which disappears in the molting season. The eggs are large and yellowish brown and only four in number. There are in low bushes or even on the ground, thus the fledglings are often destroyed. There is a government Reservation in the south end of the beach.

When you people were having your first snow storm, we were having a temperature of 85 degrees, but cool weather soon followed and had for a few days. The rains were in order, or Jersey degrees. It dropped in one night from 85 to 63 next morning and stayed about there three days. Really it was like a de-
